This Policy may change from time to time and is available on our website. The NPPs govern the way we collect, use, disclose, store, protect and dispose of your personal information. However, in some circumstances we may receive information from third parties. To protect your personal information, we may need your identification before disclosing the requested information. This information is stored on secure servers in digital format or in a locked archiver if it is a hard copy format. Printed jobseekers' information is destroyed within 3 months of filling the job, however, if it is in digital format, it may be kept for up to one year. Employee information may be retained for up to one year after an employee stops working at JPW Marine, after which it will be deleted/destroyed. In such a case, we will take reasonable steps to ensure that you are aware of the information provided to us by the third party. A copy of the Australian Privacy Principles is available on the Australian Office of the Information Commissioner's website at What is Personal Information and why do we collect it? Access to Your Personal Information You may access the Personal Information we hold about you and to update and/or correct it, subject to certain exceptions.
